

Announcing:

RELC 3559-03, African Americans and the Bible

This course will examine how African Americans have read and understood the Bible from slavery to the present. We will discuss historic and contemporary controversies and approaches to biblical interpretation by analyzing spirituals, sermons, autobiographies and other cultural, artistic, political and religious productions of black communities.

This Semester's Special Focus:

Barack Obama, Religion, and the 2008 Presidential Election

RELC 3559-03, African Americans and the Bible

Tuesdays, 3:30 to 6 pm

Fall, 2011

